Pledge of Spinsterhood It Will Not Stick; No Girl Can Bear to Live On and Become an Old Maid by Choice, -By Bentrice Fairfax

AM a young man of nineteen." writes X. Y. Z., "and in love with a girl of seventeen who has signed an old-maid pledge, about which she seems to be serious. I have been paying her attention for the past six months and would like to know whether to con-

Following is the pledge of spinster-hood which this wise old dame of seven-teen has signed: "We, the undersigned, vow in all good faith that we shall, for the convenience of ourselves and the good of the world live as Old Maids.

"We, the said undersigned, do agree that we will work honestly and faithfully until, if our lives are spared, we have accumulated a sum requisite for purchasing and maintaining a small house in the suburbs, where the said undersigned shall reside.

"We shall have freedom to visit, entertain, etc., such of our friends as we desire. There is to be no restriction, except that we shall deport ourselves in all manner, and under all circumstances, as ladies.

"It is also agreed by the undersigned that when we reach the age of forty, with consent of the majority, we shall each adopt a child from the asylum.

"If any of this charmed and secret circle should commit the grievous error of marrying, the penalty will be expulsion from the aforesaid circle, and she must hand her finnce this pledge before the committee to be torn up by the said ommittee to be torn up by the said

No Sense of Humor. The young have no sense of humor. It requires adversity, humiliation, disap-pointment and grief to make one philosophical, and philosophy is the parent of wit. If the young had a sense of humor X. Y. Z would carre this pledge about with him that he may have something to smile about when things go wrong. and the girl who has signed it would laugh herself to death. What does it amount to? Less than the paper it is written on!

Imagine, if you can, a lot of kittens agreeing what they will do and be when they are old tabby cats!

Conceive, if you can, of the kind of a girl who will deny herself the frivolities youth, the pretty ribbons and feathers and clothes, the theater, the dance, the love that is looking her way, that she may some day have a home in which she will enjoy the glorious privilege of shriveling up as an old maid!

shriveling up as an old maid!

No girl makes that pledge for herself, my dear young man. She looks at the other girls, and sees that they are plain, and not so attractive as herself. "They know they will be old maids!" every girl says, "and are making their plans so that it will look as if they wanted to be. Of course, I'll sign the pledge, It may please them, and won't hurt me."

Believe me my dear young man your. Believe me, my dear young man, your sweetheart would work harder to stay out of such a place than to enter it. Let me assure you that she would know neither peace of mind nor rest if she thought for a moment that a home with no one in it but women was to be her refuge.

If she thinks so now, it is because she is seventeen. When she is twenty-seven she will be in a panic because her steps seem to be turning that way.

Encourage your sweetheart. Let her than that when she is safely within the know that when she is safely within the walls of this retreat, you will drive by with your wife some day and perhaps name one of your babies for her.

It will prove a sure cure.

GIRL SAVES $770: THIEF TAKES $400 Burgiar Robs Nellie Corley's Trunk

Her the Small End. Nollie Corley, a waitress at the Hotel. Shellion, may have to work another year before she can return to herhome in Belfast, Ireland. She came nome in Belfast, Ireland. She came here a short time ago from Bisbee, Ariz, with $770 in an envelope. The money represented the savings of two years, and she was planning to return to her home after working a short time longer. She did not believe in banks, so she kept the money in the envelope in her trunk in her room at 202 Chihughua street. Monday night some one entered her room while she some one entered her room while she was at work, secured the key to the trunk and found the envelope. The hellef of the detectives, who are working on the case, is that the burg-lar bad socialistic instincts, for just $400 was extracted from the envelope. leaving $370. On account of the de-nomination of the bills, the money could not be more evenly divided. The key was left in the lock of the trunk. There is no clew.

DENIES INTERFERENCE IN WHITE SLAVE PROSECUTIONS WHITE SLAVE PROSECUTIONS
Washington, D. C., July 25.—Attorney general McReynolds today issued an emphatic denial of published reports that he had construed the Mann white slave act in such a maner that the Diggs-Caminetti cases might not be brought to trial in San Francisce or that he had instructed United States attorneys to confine the enforcement of the law to cases of commercialized the law to cases of commercialized lowing Irregular Opening and Bear Activity.

New York, July 29.—For the first time in over a week, today's early stock market bore signs of having reached the limit of its rise, temporarily at least. Following an irregular opening, the list soon manifested a heavy tendency, especially in Union Pacific, Reading, Lehigh Valley, Canadian Pacific and Can.

The decline was accelerated by a renewal of the bearish operations in several lof the leaders. There were mains extending to two points in the liactive class, but that movement excited little interest. Crop news was not altogether, reassuring and the statement of the treasury department twos was deprecated in banking circles.

The bond market was firm New York, July 29 .- For the first twos was deprecated in banking circles.

The bond market was firm.

Some of the forenoon's decline was retrieved when selling orders were withdrawn. The recovery was not of much importance, the general feeling of uncertainty which surrounded the market defenting tentative efforts to put prices up.

Fluctuations in stocks were unusually narrow during most of the afternoon. Traders seemed to be waiting for some new impulse to again start prices moving vigorously. Little attention was paid to the crop bulletins. The market closed steady. Buying of Erie stocks and bonds furnished the only interesting feature of the later dealings. Some of the favorites recovered to about yesterday's close, but towards the close their was some further shading of prices.

MICHIGAN GOVERNOR MAY SETTLE CALUMET STRIKE

Representatives of the Mine Owners and Miners May He Summoned For a Conference at Lansing.

Lansing, Mich., July 19.—As a result of the conference today with vice president Mahoney, of the Western Federation of Miners, and atterney W. A. Kerr, of Calumet, counsel for the operators, action will probably be taken tonight to bring representatives of the mine owners and the miners together for a meeting in the executive office in the hope of settling the labor dispute in the upper peninsula.

No new issues were raised at the conference in the governor's office. Both Mahoney and Kerr repeated the request that the governor use his office to bring the two factions together and effect a settlement. The chief executive said he was perfectly willing to use his influence to adjust matters, but that he copper country.

I side with the husband. I think that there is nothing else in the world in which the most of us show ourselves so cowardly as in the craven, meaching way in which we give into people with tempers and iet them ride roughshod over us. Before a redhended temper and a venomous tongue we are all arrant cowards, and that is why the possessors of tempers don't try to construct the competence of the same and internet is a circumstance.

Among my acquaintances there is a certain child who holds the world's championship for crying. She shrieks and shrieks until she maddens every body about her. THE LAST STRAW. (The price of prunes has been ad-vanced 20 percent during the last two years.) Old Caesar mid: "Et tu Brute."

And then prepared to swoon, And wistfully, like Chesar, now We gaze upon the prune. Full many years the sturdy prune Has cheered us on our way; A loyal friend in time of need,

At our right hand each day, When cost of living seared and seared
The prune stayed in its place,
And shed a ray of hope upon...

The crape upon the boarding house,
There's no more fulsome glee.
For very soon the common prune
A luxury will be.—Roy K. Moulton.

The Curse of Temper The Worst Problems of Life Are Not

Little One -By Dorothy Dix HE real problems of life are not the big problems, nor are its tragedies the great sorrows of existence. The conundrums that noexistence. The conundrums that no-body can answer are offered by just little everyday complications, and the things that break our hearts, and wreck homes, are not great sins, or afflictions, but small, miserable, ser-did worries and aggravations that biot out the sunshine and take all the joy out of life for us. As an example of this I submit the case of one of my correspondents. She is a good, conscientious woman, mar-ried to a good man, and they have had a happy home. Becently, how-ever, the woman's mother has died and she had to offer the shelter of her home to a young sister, a heautiever, the woman's mother has died and she had to offer the shelter of her home to a young sister, a heautiful and talented girl of 30, who has the temper of a virago.

The girl has nowhere else to go, for although she is amply fitted by her abilities to support herself, she can keep no situation because of her uncontroled temper and tongue. To have to support her is a burden on her sister, but the worst feature of it is that the girl has made a peaceful and happy home such a storm center that it is wrecking it, and the woman's husband is very naturally threatening to send the sister away.

Fears the Worst.

The poor wife and sister is between two fires. She fears the worst for her sister if the girl, young and beautiful and headstrong, is deprived of all guardianship and restraint, and even of shelter, and at the same time she feels the injustice of sacrificing her husband and her home to the girl's tantrums, and she asks what she had best do under the circumstances.

body about her. Not long ago, ratch-ing her for once in a smiling mood, I said. "Mabel why do you cry so much?" She looked at me in round muche" She looked at me in round eyed amazement and calmly replied, "Why, if I didn't cry, how would I get anything I want?"

That is the philosophy of the individuals with high tempers. It's the easiest way to get what they want, for the person without a temper is no more fitted to cope with the individual with a temper than an infant in arms to engage in a prize fight with Jack Johnson.

So far as I know, no psychologist has ever attempted to explain the fear we have of the tempers of those with whom we must live. At any rate, the fact remains that we all do stand in such shaking questring fear of the high tempered that we encourage them in giving full reign to their evil dispositions. This makes us to a degree accessory before the crime. We need more grit and backbone in dealing with them, and it's dollars to doughnuts that if the evil tempered knew that they would be chucked out of house and home unless they controlled themselves they would onto their passions.

Temper should be made the first cause for divorce. At any rate, the fact remains that
